

Reany's How to Print Guide – Home Run Frontals

Make your diaper truly yours!

Before You Get Started:

Make sure you have an inkjet/laser printer with full colour printing capability before getting started. We also recommend checking your ink levels before printing to ensure you get the best quality result. Running low on ink mid-print can affect how your design turns out, so it's worth a quick check beforehand!

Instructions for Use:

1. Design Your Masterpiece!

To help you get started we have a premade template file available right on the page, simply download it and your sizing is already taken care of! If you'd prefer to design from scratch, just set your canvas to 11" x 4.5" and you're good to go. Not a designer? No worries at all, we also have a selection of ready-to-print designs made by us that you can grab right from the product page and print straight away. Something for everyone!

2. Print Time!

Almost time to see your design come to life, but first let's make sure everything goes smoothly. Load your Home-Run Frontal sheets with the shiny, smooth plastic side facing the print head. That's your print surface. The paper backing on the other side gets peeled off later, so definitely don't print on that side! If your fingers have been anywhere near the print surface, give it a quick wipe with a clean cloth first, as oils from your hands can affect how the ink sits on the sheet. All good? Go ahead and hit print!

PRINT SETTINGS:

Ensure your printer properties are set to the custom paper size of 4.5" x 11" with landscape orientation. Print at actual size (100% scale).

Note: If you choose 'fit to page,' you avoid the image getting cropped but there will be a white border around the edges.

3. Flatten it Out:

Before peeling the backing off, lay your printed frontal face-down on a flat surface and stack a heavy book or two on top. Let it sit for a few minutes until it is nice and flat. Skipping this step can lead to bubbles and wrinkles during application, and nobody wants that! Try to avoid smoothing it with your hands too, as it is less effective and any oils transferred to the surface can make it harder for your diaper tapes to stick down later.

4. Prep Your Diaper:

Grab a clean cloth and give the front of your diaper a quick wipe in the area where you will be applying the frontal. A clean surface means a much stronger bond, trust us, it is worth the extra ten seconds!

5. Peel & Place:

Here's where the magic happens! Rather than peeling the whole backing off at once, take it slow and do one side at a time. Peel back one half, carefully line it up, and press it down firmly before peeling the remaining backing and smoothing the other half into place. Work from the centre outward to keep everything free of bubbles and creases. Take your time here, a little patience goes a long way!

6. You're Done!

Fasten your diaper tapes right onto your brand new custom frontal and enjoy showing off your design! From here you can either refold your diaper and set it aside for later, or go ahead and fasten one up to try it out right away!

Choosing the Right Frontal:

Not sure which type to go with? Here's a quick breakdown!

Clear Frontals

The clear frontal is a fantastic choice for most designs. Since there is no background colour, your artwork sits seamlessly on the diaper with nothing getting in the way. What you designed is exactly what you get! Just keep in mind whatever colour the diaper is will come through the design so keep this in mind for non-white diapers.

White Frontals

Got a colourful diaper, or does your design need a solid white background to really pop? The white frontal is your best friend. One thing to keep in mind, the white of the frontal may not be an exact match to your diaper's colour. Trim the canvas with your artwork to avoid any noticeable white border around the edges before applying.
